Good Design 2022 Recognizes Thousands of Designers and Manufacturers for the ‘Best of the Best’ in New Global Design for Consumer Products, Environments, Graphics and Packaging

Since 1950, GOOD DESIGN has been the most globally recognized trademark when it comes to design excellence awarding the latest, most advanced products and designs for their innovation and invention from FORTUNE 500 companies, manufacturers, start-up companies and the world’s most renowned designers and architects

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS (December 29, 2022) — Founded in Chicago in 1950 by Charles and Ray Eames, Eero Saarinen, and MoMA curator Edgar J. Kaufmann Jr., GOOD DESIGN is internationally recognized as the ultimate, global symbol for design excellence.

GOOD DESIGN is the first and oldest and longest running design prize in the world that honors all design achievements in all its disciplines: from product, packaging, communication and service design, architecture, and interior architecture to user interface (UI), user experience (UX), and professional concept.

The highly-prized, highly anticipated, and highly-publicized awards are bestowed annually by The Chicago Athenaeum: Museum of Architecture and Design and The European Centre for Architecture Art Design and Urban Studies.

Finnish architecture and design critic, Christian Narkiewicz-Laine has served as GOOD DESIGN’s chief curator since 1987.

He is also the president/CEO of The Chicago Athenaeum.

Originally conceived in a collaboration between MoMA and the Merchandise Mart in Chicago, the program’s goal has been to recognize exceptional achievement in industrial design.

The logo, designed by Chicago graphic designer Mort Goldsholl in 1950, is one of the world’s top and most immediately recognized logotypes.

Over the decades, the program has since grown to highlight design in many connected disciplines, including architecture, design strategy, branding, digital interaction, and so much more.

Each year, thousands of entries are submitted by design teams across the globe.

The annual global competition evaluates product design, communication design, packaging design and concept designs by the world’s leading brands and sheds light on current trends emerging in the international design and manufacturing sectors.

“Since its inception, the goal of GOOD DESIGN has always remained to identify and honor the pinnacle of design excellence,” states Narkiewicz-Laine

“It’s inspiring to see signs of more sustainable approaches in design—sustainability as “the new luxury”—meaning replacing some of old, irrelevant aspirations, with new and meaningful and clear objectives.”

“The winning designers and manufacturers have all taken on one of the biggest challenges in the global design world: to produce a meaningful, superb, and timeless product design that withstands function, lasting use, and inspiring and profound relevance.”

“And they have thus convinced an astute jury of leading international design experts.”

“GOOD DESIGN,” continues Narkiewicz-Laine, “recognizes products and services that encourage, inspire, and push the global design and manufacturing industry forward. We promote innovation and excellence.”

Since its inception, the goal of GOOD DESIGN has always remained to identify and honor the pinnacle of design excellence.

The Award is unweathered by shifting fads or transitory styling.

Rather, its winners reveal the tremendous significance of design in business, society and beyond, thus proving that great results are possible when design is leveraged to its fullest potential.

The program encourages an in-depth and forward-thinking process to ultimately honor the world’s best design that brings real benefit to users, clients, and society.

Some of this year’s winning entries are the world’s most successful and popular products of all time.

This fact further enriches GOOD DESIGN’S history of only recognizing the very best submissions each year.

For many designers, GOOD DESIGN sets the standard for examples of exceptional design and is frequently used as a reference when developing new products.

The GOOD DESIGN Awards sets the benchmark for what a design award represents and has endured 72 years to become a career-defining catalyst for those talented enough to win.

For this 72nd edition of GOOD DESIGN, award winners will be honored and celebrated at the “Good Design Show,” which opens at The European Centre for Architecture Art Design and Urban Studies in Athens, Greece starting March 31, 2023.

A glamorous awards presentation and gala dinner will be held at the foot of the Acropolis that same night.

Dinner tickets are available by contacting Ms. Konstadina Geladaki, Director of Communications at TEL: +30/210 3428511 Email: konstadina@europeanarch.eu.
